Plano AsiaFest 2014 Celebrates Asian American and Pacific Islander Heritage Month

The Celebrating Asian American Heritage Foundation, a non-profit all-volunteer organization, is proud to announce the 11th annual Plano AsiaFest celebration on May 3, 2014 at Haggard Park in Downtown Plano as a part of National Asian American and Pacific Islander Heritage Month. AsiaFest 2014 is an event for the entire family. Admission and parking in city lots are free.

The day will be filled with live, cultural performances featuring traditional and modern dance, music, and martial arts demonstrations displaying the breadth of Asian arts and history. The park will be lined with booths featuring cultural exhibits and crafts vendors, as well as several activities for the kids. Various Asian food vendors will also be present to give visitors a little taste of Asia to accompany the sights and sounds.

This year, the Celebrating Asian American Heritage Foundation is also partnering with the Plano Art Association to feature art created by Asian artists or inspired by the Asian culture. The exhibit, "Celebrate," aptly describes the mood that the Plano AsiaFest sets for its visitors, and showcases some of the best artists that Plano has to offer.
